

Dear Parents,

This week we have been learning about a type of figurative language called a simile. A simile is a comparison of two unlike objects using the words like or as. To wrap up our lesson on similes, I am asking for the students to bring in objects that represent themselves in similes for a class portrait. To give you an idea of what the finished product will look like I have embedded student samples on the page. The students are excited to make their creations and add them to our bulletin board!

Your challenge will be to see if you can find your child on the board, based on their similes!

Sincerely,

There's an APP for that!

Faces iMake:

Faces iMake was developed with renowned artist, children's book author and educator Hanoch Piven. His books are what inspired the activity.
